is an American working in France at the time of the Second World War alongside Picasso and Braque.

Was born in a small town in Italy and migrated with his family to America just before the second World War where they settled in NYC.

born in the Bronx where he still works in a studio with multiple assistants working on large bronze sculptures.

a series of these works based loosely on views taken from an airplane while gliding through clouds.

created an extraordinary body of work and this piece, Untitled, represents one of the most sought after in her abstract color series.

has one original and two copies of this painting, all combining oil and gouache in the same work.

made and is renowned for this output.

made one painting every two years although last year saw an increase to three paintings.

The female in the group worked on textiles and produced several hundred over the course of her career.

Innovative pieces by women in the group have changed the course of radical thinking around contemporary installation art.

Her work is often seen as leading the way for textile artists working with silk.

Her mother was a leading writer in the Paris avant-garde and she grew up surrounded by Apollinaire and other contemporary poets.

The painting consists of a man isolated on a hill.

The group was made up of six men, all from the city of Rome, who worked on collaborative projects.

The male gaze is in evidence here, as seen through the eyes of the Greek hero.

Featured prominently can be seen six cattle with a donkey led by a man with a white beard.
